
A high rank against unrelated pairs is evidence about that comparison, not proof of preserved identity.